The Nova Scotia Huntleys.

When the schooner "Hope" hoisted her sails before the wind and headed out to sea in 1760, she carried several of those Connecticut families who were embarking for a new home-land and reviving the pioneer spirit which had been more or less on the wane ever since "Ole" John Huntly had come up from the Barbadoes more than three generations before. True, many Lyme-folks were sea-farin' but now many excellent farms were available in Arcadia which had only recently been abandoned by Evangeline's relatives to make their homes among the bayous of Louisiana.

On the roster of the "Hope" was Daniel Huntley and his wife, who had been Sussanna Beckwith and two of their four living children. These two were Daniel and Jason, who are the ancestors of that branch of the Huntley family familiar to many of us as "the Nova Scotia Huntleys".

The Huntleys of Norwich, Vermont.

"The strange part about these Huntleys in Norwich," writes James M., "lies in the fact that the descendants of the two branches—namely Daniel<sup>5</sup> and Jason<sup>5</sup>, sons of Daniel<sup>4</sup>, migrated to the States, settling in Norwich. Josiah D.<sup>9</sup> and some of his brothers came to the States though their father and mother remained in Scott's Bay, Nova Scotia. Little did we realize that we were all related (the Jason and the Daniel branch) until the genealogy disclosed the fact. We did know, however, that the aforementioned Josiah was definitely related to Della, not because their names were Huntley, but because their mothers were sisters."

(James Huntley, father of Josiah D., married Jane McLellan; Noble Huntley, father of Della, married Agnes Rachel McLellan.
